It seems every year Thanksgiving gets overtaken by Christmas earlier and earlier. I went to Starbucks this past weekend and did not get a holiday flavored drink, just because it feels too early!!

But it is never too early to give thanks! Never too early to be grateful! Never too early to count our blessings! Do you remember that song for your childhood church days?

“Count your blessings, name them one by one...”

What would our lives look like if we were more intentional about counting our blessings instead of proclaiming our burdens? Would we have more joy, more peace, less stress, less anxiety, more hope, more love, less anger, less jealousy?

I challenge you this week to write down five things every day for which you are thankful. They don't have to be big things. Often the sheer amount of small blessings are the things that make the biggest impact on our thinking and being.

I'll be asking next week...so come ready to share a few of the things you are grateful for this week, this year, right now!
