Thank you for time away! During vacation I spent several days in Paris helping care for my mom. And I spent hours reading Disciples' History - somewhere around 400 pages, mostly primary source documents from Barton Stone, Thomas and Alexander Campbell and Walter Scott from the 1800's. I was able to have lunch with a friend one day and spend a couple of days just watching tv and relaxing, too.

And now I'm back to the grind preparing for class August 7-11 to complete requirements for my transfer of ordination and standing into the DoC (so that I'm officially, official from a denominational standpoint), getting the final paperwork for the RCOM interview done and finishing up the final paper for the DMIN class I took in June - all before beginning the thesis stage of my DMIN program. The next few months will be busy for me outside of work and family!!

As far as church is concerned, we have several community things coming up including our back to school feminine hygiene drive, our book discussion group, the community blood drive and our upcoming First Responders' Breakfast in October. Be sure you mark your calendars!
