Confession.

They say it's good for the soul. And I suppose that's true. When we admit what's going on – whether it's a hard situation, an area of sin or shortcomings or something else – it usually feels like a burden has been lifted when I share the struggles or mistakes I've made, when I own my failures and admit my faults.

Lent is a season of confession. It's a season where we tell the truth about our relationship with God to God. We lay it all out – the good, bad, ugly and wonderful – as we prepare to celebrate Easter.

I'd like to encourage you to take a different approach to confession this week. Instead of confessing all the things you've done wrong, try confessing the truth about who God is! Speak the truth about what God has done and how God has worked in your life.

I promise you, the world will be better because of it!
